

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

508
.R9

A 451318

JF

50

.R

OF THE
Antiquity, Power & Decay
OF PARLIAMENTS.
Being A General VIEW
OF
Government, and Civil Policy,
In EUROPE:

With Other
Historical and Political Observations, Relating thereunto.

By THO. RYMER, Esquire, Late Historiographer-Royal.

*Dimidium plus toto.
-----Medium non deserit unquam Celi Phœbus iter, radiis tamen omnia lustrat. Claud.*

LONDON: Sold by J. Roberts, near the Oxford-Arms in Warwick lane. 1714.

English Holding
3-21-39
18983

[1]

OF THE
Antiquity, Power & Decay
OF
PARLIAMENTS,
&c.

SIR,

E.E. the Effect of your Commands. The Want of Time, of Books, and Assistance, in this my Retirement, make me very incapable of the Undertaking. But my Obedience and Performance with a Kid, will I hope be accepted, when I cannot sacrifice an hundred Bulls.

2 The Antiquity, Power and

Without farther Ceremonies or Introduction, according to my Apprehension, when we enquire into the Authority and Nature of Parliaments, our Thoughts should be raised above all Prejudice and Particularities; we should not conceive of them, as of some Creature form'd and nourisht under this or that Constitution, but have a Notion as large and general, as is that of Government or Civil Society.

We must not be confin'd to the Writers of this or that Age, or Countrey; but consult the Universal Reason and Sense of Human kind, where Civil Government has been exercised.

Much less is any particular Profession or Faction of Writers, to be the only Authors of Credit with us, in this Enquiry.

Our Knowledge must be something digested; and an impartial Result from a Consideration of all, as well Times and Countries, as Writers and Customs.

The Civilians, with their Bartolus and Baldus, are not to dictate to us on this Occasion. These were bred out of the Corruption of the Roman Liberty; and were Instruments of Servitude from the beginning. Their work was, by hook and crook, to rap and bring all under the Emperor's Power; that was their Study, that that their Province. But they were always ignorant of the Practices of better Times, and utter Strangers to the just Rights of a Free-People; their Rules and their Maxims were, in effect, no other, than so many Stripes, so many Marks, and Items of Slavery to the Subjects.

Then for the Municipal Lawyers of every Nation, they also are educated under too narrow a Dispensation to think justly in these matters.

The Letter is the Sphere where they show their Activity, even, sometimes, to the perverting and turning it against the Reason and Intentions of the Legislator.

Their small Niceties, and their Subtleties, and their Inferences, are too fine drawn to bear or support a matter of this Weight and Circumference.

Their Deductions and Argumentations must ever be taken with some Grains of allowance; the Cause here requires other Forms and Considerations. We are not to stick at the Letter, but go to the Foundation, to the Inside and Essence of things.

By their Acquaintance with the Customs and Laws, they may aid and direct, but not overrule; they may apply their Observations to strengthen the Fundamental Reason, but are not

4 The Antiquity, Power and not to perplex and subvert the Form of Government.

My Lord Coke tells us, Parliament is derived from Parler le ment, i. e. from speaking the Mind. He might as honestly have taught us that Firmament is Firma mentis, a Farm for the Mind; or Fundament, the Bottom of the Mind.

My Lord Coke, how sage soever otherwise, in Parliament-house is of no more Authority than Thomas Aquinas.

And take him from his ordinary Element, his Reasons are many times as ridiculous as his Etymologies.

Then for the Holy Scripture; the Design of it is no more to teach us Politicks, than to make us Philosophers.

Ahaz's Dial is no Precedent for our Time or Measures; nor may the Theocracy of the Jews authorize us to set up for King Jesus.

Our Blessed Saviour did not distinguish whether Cæsar demanded Tribute, as Tribune and Servant of the People; and whether the Roman Empire remained still Democratical, (as Cæsar pretended) or was Monarchical, as, in effect, it prov'd.

The Holy Ghost neither alter'd the Complexion, nor refin'd the Education; but a Shepherd

Shepherd, notwithstanding the Oracles he delivered, continued the same in other circumstances, as if he never had been inspir'd.

In like manner, where-ever Christ is Preach'd, the Soul-saving Doctrine in no wise operates upon the Policy of Civil Constitutions; but leaves those Affairs to be influenc'd by their ordinary Prudence and Discretion.

Whether it be some particular Generosity in our Nature, that renders us impatient of Slavery: Or, whether the Temperateness of the Climate inclines us to a Moderation in our Government: Or, whether it may be some favourable Aspect of the Planets, (as Ptolomey would perswade us) that disposes Europe to the Love of Liberty.

So far as any Record or History can inform us, That Arbitrary and unlimited Domination (so familiar in the Eastern parts of the World) amongst us did always shew uncouth, and to be stared upon no less than their Elephants. And indeed to us seem altogether inconsistent with a Civil People.

And it can be no more the business of the Gospel to reconcile us to that Yoke, than it is to emasculate our Complexion and Nature, to change the Temper of our Climate, or to turn our Stars from their Course.

6 The Antiquity, Power and

All Power is from God, and, we are to be subject to the Higher Powers; this all consent to; this is Doctrine alike true in Holland as in France, at Venice as at Constantinople.

But where this high Power and Sovereignty rests, in whom 'tis lodged, this is a Point not so obvious: Nor can the S. S. or Holy Fathers any way help us in the Discovery.

The Customs and particular Laws of every Nation, are only capable to direct us in that Scrutiny.

Obedience is as much a Duty, and Rebellion as black a Sin where the People are King, as where a single Person has the Sovereign Sway.

The Title of King, Monarch, or Emperor, the Scepter, the Crown, the Royal Throne, with all the Robes and Pumps, and Badges of Sovereignty; and the Precedence before other Christian Kings, have the Shadow of Majesty, but have none of the Substance, as Bodin truly observes.

The Cæsars were never so absolute, as when the Senate had the Show, and the Name of all. But afterwards when their Power declin'd, then did their Shadows lengthen, and their Titles swell beyond all Sobriety and Proportion.

The

The French Parliaments in their Scarlet Robes, know none of that Sovereign Power which their plain Ancestors so long had exercised in their Grey Jackets.

The Pontificalibus and Formality, derogates from the Antiquity and Independency. And our House of Commons may seem in a manner, (if I may so say) to have committed some kind of Solecism, in taking a Mace to be carry'd before them; but that their Simplicity and Plainness otherwise sufficiently demonstrates them the true, sincere, original, fundamental Common Council, constituted and form'd before Forms and Pageantries and Fopperies obtain'd in our English World.

For Badge and Ornament they had Jupiter's Scepter; which Plato interprets to be, not a ript Battoon, or glittering engraven Thing, but, the Laws and Legislative Power.

Homer has taught the World to call Kings Pastors of the People. We commit not the Charge of our Cattle to any one of the Herd; nor for our Sheep do we chuse one out of the Flock to be their Shepherd; but set over them a more excellent sort of Animal, some Man is appointed for the Neatherd, and for the Shepherd, to govern and take the Charge of them.

8 The Antiquity, Power and

Now since, for the Conduct and Sway over Men, the World is not furnisht with any Species more noble than Man, Art supplies what was wanting in Nature; an artificial Man is fram'd, a Politick Creature, a King that never dies, that can do no wrong, that cannot be deceived, whose Councils and Determinations are the Result of the joynt Experience and Wisdom of a whole Nation.

Now whether this Artificial, may be call'd a mixt sort of Government, as the Antients imagin'd. Or that it be originally, essentially, and fundamentally a Democracy, Monarchical in the Administration, as Bodin and our Modern Politicians seem to understand. This certainly is the Government that always has obtain'd in Europe; and that which all, amidst their Commotions, Distractions, and Convulsions, in some manner or other, with more or less Success and Perfection, have tended to, as the Center, and only Place of Rest.

If therefore the Jews had desired a King after the manner of the Europeans, their Importunity peradventure might not have been so provoking to the Almighty; and we should have found another kind of Catalogue of their fair Qualities, than that delivered us by the Prophet. For however their Asian or African Neighbours might have domineer'd it, and bluster'd; a calmer Gale was always wont to breath breath amongst us in Europe. And (God be thank't) we are many degrees Northern Latitude from Og the King of Bashan, and the Lands of those other Giants, Amalekites, and Philistines.

Decay of Parliaments. 9

The first Writers amongst us had their Imaginations so overborn with the Excellency of Kingly Government, that they fancied in Heaven Jupiter to be the King of the Gods. And yet they thought the Common Council so necessary and essential, that Homer represents even Jupiter, upon a great occasion, calling his θεῶν ἀγορὴν, his Parliament of the Gods.

Ζεὺς δὲ θεῶν ἀγορῶν ποιήσας τερπικέραυνος.

Ἀκροῖδ' αὖτε κορυφῇ πολυδαιερός ἐλύμποιο.

I have heard Divines observe something of this kind, as figured of God Almighty from those words, Let us make Man. Those words in the plural number to them seemed to import, as if God summon'd a Parliament of the Trinity, to consult upon that arduous affair.

Our Christian Poets have taken the same Liberty, and fancied this, as an Image of Greatness, where could be no Accession to the Wisdom and Omnipotence.

But again, Homer (whom Plato in his Book of Laws, mentions as a Prophet, and one who reveals those things concerning Government, by Inspiration, which are not by humane Knowledge to be attain'd) to shew the utmost Inhumanity and Barbarity of the Cyclopes and their Government, tells us, They neither held Parliaments for Council, nor had Right.

10 The Antiquity, Power and

-1- Tolosin & d' dybega βελιπόμεν, & d' d'puses.

He joyns Parliament and Right, as of late days Guicciardine does Parliament and Liberty; as if Parliament, Right, and Liberty, were to stand and fall together.

And indeed amongst the Greeks, how many Persons, excellent otherwise, have been branded for Tyrants and Monsters, and made odious to all Posterity, because they affected a more singular and unbounded Power than was consistent with the Customs and Constitutions of their Country?

Nor was this Policy less known or practis'd by the Latines. None of the antient Kings of Italy and Rome exercis'd other Government than by Parliament, till Tarquin the Proud, with much Stratagem and Artifice, attempted a new way; but how fatal did he find that Innovation?

Afterwards that the Cesars usurped the Empire, when their Power was the highest, they affected to have all done in the Name of the People and Senate. Noque tam parvum quicquam

Decay of Parliaments. II

quam, neque tam magnum publici privatique negotii, de quo non ad Patres Conscriptos referrebat.

And notwithstanding the antient Liberty and Government was so run down; yet, on some occasions, the Authority of the Senate would be exerting it self.

They declared Nero an Enemy of the State, and their Sentence had its effect.

Nor could (the Delight of Humane kind) Titus, though so far engaged in Love and Honour, stem the Authority of the Senate, in favour of his dear Berenice; but was forc'd to dismiss her, because they forbade the Bans.

And in effect, the Power of the Senate once gone, that of the Emperors signified little; the giddy Souldiers broke all Rules and Measures. They mutiny'd, and made and unmade Emperors, where, and when, and whom they had a mind to. So that the Emperor was only Tenant at will to the Army.

Our Botchers of History, shew a jolly Succession of Monarchs on their file for Britain in those days. But Cæsar's Commentaries are of much better Credit, who represents the Government of Gaul and Britain, as much what the same in his time; says he of Britain, Summa Imperii bellicue administrandi Communi Consilio permissa est Cassivellano, &c. The chief Command and Conduct of the War, was by the Common Council committed to Cassivellan. Compare these words with what he writes of the Gauls, l. 7. Re in Controversiam deductâ totius Gallie Consilium Bibracte indicitur, eodem conveniunt undique frequentes multitudines, suffragiis res permittitur, ad unum omnes Vercingetorigem probant Imperatorem. Here the Council of all Gaul, by reason of the War, put it to the Vote who should be their General; it was carried with a nemine contradicente for Vercingetorix.

12 The Antiquity, Power and

And 'tis beyond dispute, that their Government continued the same in the Times of which Dion Cassius and Tacitus writ.

Nor is their Uniformity so strange, considering the Authority of the Druids, and their Correspondence in both Nations.

When the English and French came from Germany to people Britain and Gaul, the German Liberty and moderate Sway were transplanted with them; and still the Common Council had the main stroke in all weighty Affairs; for to that Policy had they been educated.

The Scheme of the German Government appears in these Passages of Tacitus; De minoribus rebus Principes consultant, de majoribus Omnes: In lesser Matters the Principal Men only, in the greatest Affairs all consult.

Elsewhere he says of them, Ubi Rex vel Princeps audiuntur Autoritate suadendi, magis quam quam jubendi potestate: Where the King or Prince are heard for the Reasons they bring to persuade, rather than for any Authority to command.

Hereby 'tis manifest, that in Germany also the People had their Share in debating and directing all Affairs of moment.

When therefore the French under Waramond, or Pharamond, came to Settle and Mix with the Gauls, whatever other Differences might happen, in point of Government they were agreed beforehand, both resting upon the same Basis the Common Council.

Accordingly, in those first days, we find them making their Kings, and again upon occasion unmaking them by general Consent. Hence come those Phrases so frequent in Aimoinus, Sigebert, Engenhardus, and the other Writers of those times. Consensu Francorum, Electione Francorum, Secundum Morem Francorum, in Regem electus, &c. On the other hand, Franci regno deturbant, à Francis repudiatur, depositus ac detonsus, in monasterium detrusus est, à Francis in Monachum tonsuratur, &c. Where we may note, that our Authors intend by their per Francos, as much as per consensum Francorum, or secundum morem Francorum, which is, by the Common Council, and not in any unusual, mutinous, and tumultuous way, as some might object.

14 The Antiquity, Power and

Nor are we to imagine the Government presently altered, so often as we find the Historians varying their Phrase. We must now and then be content with such words as the Monks of those times were pleased to coin for us, and have new barbarous Names for the same old Civil Constitution.

Whether they speak of Germany, of the French, or of our Nation, they indifferently diversify, and employ for the same Common Assembly, amongst others, the Appellations and Circumlocutions following;

Sometimes they call it Curia, and Curia Imperialis, and Curia Regalis, Curia solennis, generalis Curia, magna Curia.

Concelebranda patrum Solenni Curia coetu, Curia Roncaliis jampridem indicta coiret, say their Poets. Which is expressed in the German Tongue, by Hove, Koiglicher Hove, grossen Hoff.

Elsewhere it is call'd Congregationes, which the Germans render Reichsversammlung.

Sometimes it is call'd Concilium Principum, totius Germaniae Concilium, Concilium generale. Sunthur says,

*Concilium Procerum toto de corpore regni
Convocat.* —————

And

And the Monk of Paderborn, who liv'd about eight hundred years ago, in his Annals of Charles the Great,

Anno 772.

Et Rex Wormatiam Carolus collegit in urbem, Francorum proceres ad Concilium generale.

Imperialia Concilia postquam cessavere, omnes pene deformitates introductæ sunt, says Cardinal Cusan.

Elsewhere these are called Conventus, Conventus generalis, Conventus publicus, Convenire generaliter populum suum præcepit. Habuit populi sui generalem Conventum. Habitoque juxta Morem Conventu generale. The Monk of Paderborn thus versifies.

Anno 775.

*Ad Duriam vicum properat, nam rege jubente,
Illic Conventus populi generalis habetur.*

Elsewhere,

Venit, & ad fontes fluvii cui Lippia nomen, Conventum fieri Procerum jussit generalem.

Anno 775.

Publicus in Paterbrunon Conventus habetur.

Most commonly it was called Placitum. Compendii placitum generale habuit. Aimoinus. Rex Pipinus habuit placitum suum in Nivernis. Regino, An. 773. and An. 777. Tenuit placitum in loco

16 The Antiquity, Power and qui dicitur Paderbrunon. Abbas Stadenſis in Chr. An. 811. Imperator habito placito, &c. And the aforeſaid Monk,

Anno 770.

*Conventum placiti generalis habere,
Cum ducibus ſe velle ſuis denunciari illic.*

Regino calls it Synodus. An. 770. Carolus habuit Synodum in Wormatia. 771. Habuit Synodum ad Valentinianos. 772. Synodum habuit in Wormatia. 775. Habuit Synodum in villa qua dicitur Duria. 780. In Lippa Synodum tenuit. Convenerant multi Episcopi, Abbates, & Principes ad Imperialem Synodum. Trithem. Abb.

Afterwards in Germany, Diet was the Name that generally prevail'd, as that of Parliament in France and England.

Now theſe Quotations and Authorities ſhew, not only that by all this Variety of Names were underſtood the ſame Common Council, but that the Principes, Proceres, Primores, Duces, Patres, &c. imported no more in Truth, nor ſignified other manner of Men, than the very ſame with Populus.

And the ſame Aſſembly, by one Writer barely called Populus, or Conventus populi, is by another ſtyled Conventus procerum, Conventus principum, &c. which thoſe Terms ſecundum morem, juxta morem, more ſolemni, ut ſolebat, more fully demonſtrate; which ſeems to refer and ſend us back to Tacitus, Conſultant de majoribus omnes. This

This I rather note, because I find Mr. Perry (amongst many other his excellent Memorials) observing the like in old Records of Parliament, where those somewhere called Populus and Vulgus, and the Commons, are otherwhiles dignified with the gay Additions of Noble, Most Noble, Most Illustrious, Most Gracious Seigniors, Monseigniors, and Sires the Commons.

And likewise for that some unwary and superficial Readers from this Root have propagated and improved many Errors of pernicious consequence to our ancient and Fundamental Policy and Government.

The French incorporating and growing one People with the former Inhabitants, had a much easier Province; they settled, and pursued their Native Customs and Forms of Government, nor met with that Difficulty and Opposition which in this Nation attended the English and Saxons. These had a much harder Game to Play. These could in no wise fix, or find any sure footing, without first clearing their way, and driving the Britains up by themselves, into a Corner of the Land.

And after much tumbling and bustle, we find them formed into an Heptarchy.

How regularly they mov'd, as to Civil Affairs, how closely they followed their Country

18 The Antiquity, Power and

Country Customs, or where they innovated and varied from their German Forms and Policy, in those dark Times, is hard to be traced.

Some Footsteps however appeared then, which remained to Posterity, as the Division of the Country into Hundreds, after the German manner described by Tacitus. Besides the other Royalties in the People, as that of Appointing Sheriffs, and Chusing Annual Magistrates, the Jurisdiction and Power of Life and Death by our Juries, &c.

And even before all came united under one Monarch, we find the People interposing their Authority, and (for the Miscarriages of Queen Edburga) providing that thereafter, No Queen shall sit by the King, nor have the Title of Queen, but be called only the King's Wife. Gens itaque occidentaliū Saxonū Reginam juxta Regem sedere non patitur, nec etiam Reginam appellari, sed Regis conjugem permittit, &c. Affer. Menev. & Mals. But I shall not repeat what Cambden and Selden, and our other Antiquaries have collected on this occasion; but Germany being the Source both of our People and Laws, I chuse rather petere fontes. And thence it may be concluded how far we do stare super vias antiquas, and continue firm upon the old bottom.

When the People and Senate of Rome had transferred all their Right upon Charles the Great

Decay of Parliaments. 19

Great (or Charlemain, as the French call him) and Germany was made the Seat of the Western Empire, one might think, if there could be an opportunity of introducing a new Form of Policy, this was the Time. Yet Charles so Victorious, so August, so Great, the like in no Age before him or since ever known on this side the Alps, notwithstanding all that Power and Fortune, and the Imperial Crown that adorn'd him, his Language was still the high German, and his Government did still, in the Old Parliamentary way, go on and prosper.

Therefore we find him every year with his Parliament. Eginhardus, who was his Son-in-Law, and Chancellor, says of him, Rex sic ad publicum populi sui conventum qui annuatim ob regni utilitatem celebrabatur, ire, sic domum redire solebat. And Aimoinus, l. 4. c. 74. Generalem Conventum quotannis habuit.

And to these Parliaments, under God, so far as humane Reason may judge, does Hincmar (Archbishop of Rheims, and Chancellor in those times) ascribe his happy Reign. Secunda divisio, qua totius Regni status anteposito, sicut semper, omnipotentis Dei judicio, quantum ad humanam rationem pertinebat, conservari videbatur, hac est, consuetudo tunc temporis erat, ut non saepius sed bis in Anno duo placita tenerentur, unam quando ordinabatur status totius Regni ad anni ventis spacium, quod Ordinatum nullus eventus rerum, nisi summa necessitas, qua similiter toti Reg-

22 The Antiquity, Power and

attempting to make his Son Zundelbolk King of Lorrain. But they would not gratifie him. Filium Zundelbolk, An. 894. Ordinibus convocatis Regno Lothoraii perficere voluit, minime tamen Optimates predicti Regni eâ vice adfensum præbuere, Regino, l. 2. But the next year after he prevailed, says the same Author: Anno vero sequenti, in conventu Wormatiæ instituto, omnibus adficientibus id demum obtinuit.

Hitherto these appear to be the same Germans, Ubi Rex vel Princeps audiuntur auctoritate suadendi, magis quam jubendi potestate.

And seeing that this Succession is one of those Points that are of greatest Importance, 'tis strange how the Right of Electing the Emperors came afterwards to be left in so few hands, and to be settled in the Seven only, who, in course of time, got the Name of Princes Electors.

Neither the Occasion, nor the Time when this Custom, began can be discovered. Some would deduce it from Charles the Great. Some from Otho the Third, who Reigned about the year 990. Others from Otho the Fourth, An. 1200. Others again from Henry the Second, who was Emperor, Anno 1001.

From which Uncertainty we may only gather, That this Custom was very Ancient.

But

But it is not to be imagined, that the other States, by any Publick Act, transferred the Right upon those Seven.

Amongst the Fallacies and Cheats of State, whereby the Rich Men may impose upon the Poorer sort, and worm them out of all their Share in the Government, Aristotle reckons these: That it be Penal for the Rich to be absent from the Common Councils, to refuse being in Office, to want, or omit the Exercise of Arms, not to serve upon Juries, &c. But the Poorer sort may use their Discretion, it shall not be Penal to them; they may chuse whether or no they will be present in Common Council, bear Office, be at the Charge of Arms and Training, be impannell'd upon Juries, &c. In these Cases, this specious Liberty fools and bewitches them: for so long as no Restraint is upon them, and they are not excluded or slighted, or disrespected any way in the matter, they rather follow their private occasions at home, and the Business of their Families. And thus by degrees is the Commonwealth and Government changed. And that is effected by Art and Trick, which openly and fairly could never have been brought to pass.

We need not think that the Germans were over-reached by any the like Sophistry and deceitful Laws; but 'tis likely, that to many it was sufficient, that it lay in their Choice whether they would act or no; and in that Security many sat down: Some could not conveniently spare Time from their Families; some were indifferent which way the World went; some could not part from their dear Delights, their Pots and their Hounds; and some staid at home, because they could not make that Show, and appear in a Pomp and Equipage like their Neighbours. By reason of these, and a many the like Considerations, together with a general Degenerateness, Supineness, and Neglect of the Publick, the Affairs of State became abandoned, and shuffled into a very few Hands; insomuch that few, besides those called the Seven Electors, made any great Figure, or much labour'd in that Sphere.

24 The Antiquity, Power and

But those Seven were suffered, from time to time, by a silent Usurpation, to manage all, till insensibly it grew into a Custom.

So that (under Charles the Fourth, when^a the Privileges and Rights of every body came to be stated, and reduced, by General Consent, into a Standing Law) in the beginning of the Golden Bull, this Ministry of the Seven Electors is said to be an Ancient and laudable Custom.

Some will have these Electors to be a Committee of the whole Empire, and that (there being one King, one Duke, one Marquess, with the Churchmen) all the several Orders in the Empire are represented by them; and consequently that their Act is virtually the Act of the Empire.

But

But it seems more reasonable, that this sort of an Aristocracy sprang up to over-top the Ancient and more popular Government, by the Negligence or Inadvertency of the other Orders; who were satisfied in seeing the Emperor thereby effectually held within Compass, and had no Care or Consideration farther.

For all their Fears and Apprehensions had risen from the Emperor; and, if so be that they might be secured against his Incroachments and Oppression, they were content to set up those Electors; to oppose the Emperor, and stand as a Bulwark betwixt him and them.

And therefore by their free Act, in the Golden Bull, they settle and confirm to the Electors that Prerogative, which no Prescription otherwise could have made Just and Authentick.

Above an hundred years before, in the Church, had the Government changed face; an Aristocracy obtain'd, and the Election of the Pope ceased to be any longer popular.

About the same time, in England also, the old Laws and Policy ran a dangerous Risk from an Inundation of Arbitrary Power, that threatned to break down all the ancient Banks and Barriers.

For

For the Normans having come amongst us partly by Consent, partly Perforce, puffed up and wanton with their new Acquisitions and Swinge of Fortune, they could not well be kept within Bounds. Now and then Speeches of Conquest and holding by the Sword, and the like Bug-titles, were bandy'd to and fro among the giddy Courtiers, with now and then a Sally and Inroad upon the People, and trampling Property under-foot.

These Insolences and Invasions kept the Nation awake, and put them upon their guard, to wait an opportunity whereby their ancient Rights and Customs might be reduced into Form, and solemnly recogniz'd by succeeding Kings in the Great Charter.

Thus was the Cockatrice crushed in the Egg; and an early stop put to Arbitrary Sway in England; and the Government returned to its old Center of Parliaments again.

Germany in this juncture, lay most open and exposed. The Emperor, Lord of the World, and Head of the Nations, Successor to those Cæsars that had broken down all Forms and Fences, so that Liberty and Property lay waste every way before them.

These owed all Power to the Sword. The Imperial Crown, the Lex regia, the whole Bulk and Body of the Civil Law, where wholly and entirely entirely their own proper Creature ; and what more might be devised to make a Prince unlimited, uncontrollable, great, and barbarous, and render him a Cyclops or a Leviathan?

But the Result was, the Customs Liberties of the Germans were far more ancient and more Sacred to them, than any New Song that the Civilians could teach them.

Therefore all this long Rattle of Imperial Prerogative only alarm'd them, and made them provide the better for their Security.

And as their Danger was the most threatening, and arm'd with stronger Titles and Pretensions than other Nations; so have they with more Care sought their Preservation. And the Golden Bull with them, was framed, and had the same Effect as Magna Charta with us; which they strengthen, and make Supplements to upon occasion, according as the Emperors abuse their Power, or that Tricks are devised, under colour of the Letter, to elude the honest Intention of that Fundamental Law and Constitution.

Thus we see it true, in respect of Sovereigns, as well as Subjects, That Evil Manners are the Cause of Good and Wholsome Laws.

The French have no Golden Bull, nor Magna Charta; peradventure, because no King
of

28 The Antiquity, Power and of theirs had those Pretensions of Conquest, as the Normans here; nor had that Imperial Title of the Sword, and the Civil Laws, as the Cæsars, to transport them beyond the Bounds of Moderation and Reason.

Which put them upon other Measures, and gave them opportunity, step by step, silyly, insensibly, and surely, to effect what more openly could never have succeeded.

As in the Fable, the Storm and Violence of the Wind could not force the Traveller's Cloak from him; but the Sun, coming silently upon him, dissolves him presently, makes him unbutton, and strips him of all.

Noise and Bluster make the People the more obstinate and tenacious. But things remote affect them not. They never see Consequences, nor lay ought to Heart that is not immediately present before their Eyes.

If any thing now and then, in the course of their King's Reign, happen'd that was shocking, all was lookt upon as some personal and accidental Slip only, without Foundation for Continuance, or without giving Jealousie of being repeated to Posterity.

About an hundred years after Magna Charta was established, was that Project of the Modern Modern Parliament in France set on foot, to render unnecessary the Ancient Assembly of the States, and consequently to alter the Government.

But the English Arms gave check to their wanton Career, and for a long time diverted them from pursuing that Design, or bringing it to any Head.

However this New Assembly and Vice-Parliament was cultivated and improved daily. They assumed all the Power, they consulted and determined the Weighty Affairs; and, in case the King offered any Violence to the Laws, they encounter'd and oppos'd his Exorbitant Courses; they lay before him his Coronation-Oath, and ply'd him with Remonstrance upon Remonstrance, till they brought him to Reason.

Neither War nor Alliance could be made, nor could any his Edict or Command have effect, till Ratified and Approved by them.

So that, to the unwary Multitude, these serv'd the Turn as well; these were as effectual and sufficient, and more ready and expeditious than the Great Old Parliament.

But afterwards came new-fashioned Kings to reign, who would not be overcome by Reasons and Remonstrances.

And yet, then also was a formal Compliance of this Parliament thought necessary; and, as an Expedient, when not satisfy'd in Conscience that an Edict ought to be Ratify'd, was introduced that Clause, Mandato Regis; which importeth, That they did not Ratifie such an Edict upon their own Judgment, but that they were over-ruled by the King's particular Command.

Afterwards again came the expresso Mandato, and expressissimo Mandato Regis, according as they pass'd it with a greater Reluctancy, and greater Violence had been offer'd to their Judgment.

But Henry the Fourth, who had fought through all Oppositions into his Kingdom, and had subdued to his Will all that had fac'd him in the Field, grew impatient, after so great Contrasts, to find his Resolutions crost, and contested by Tame Gownmen; therefore, to rid himself at once of all those verbal Frays and Formalities, made a Law, that thereafter the Kings Edicts should be Ratified and Emologated upon sight, without more formal Trifling and Dispute.

Thus were those Remains of Sovereign Power, that had surviv'd in this diminutive Parliament, baffled and extinct, without much Labour.

But as they never possessed the Vigour and Spirit of the Antient Assembly; the People were never so stupid to trust, or lay much stress on their Valour and Performance.

And therefore did more early show their Resentment; nor, without a general Convulsion and Civil War, could bear the Apprehension of a Court-design to lay aside the Old Parliament.

It was the boast of Lewis the Eleventh on this occasion, that he had Mis la Royauté hors du page, i. e. He had so ordered Matters, that the Royal State should be no more a Pupil; in him it came of Age to dispose things and act of its own Head, and should not need to be tutor'd or be under a Guardian any longer.

This was a Prince of particular Humour, and of singular Endowments. It was no wonder if he did not like the Check of a Parliament; he had before attempted by two or three Rebellions to free himself from the Authority of his King and Father.

The good old King Charles the Seventh, weathered the upon Violence, but Fear of Poyson overcame him; insomuch, that he durst neither Eat nor Drink any thing, but after five days Fasting dyed.

And now Lewis being King, his first work was to clear the Court from all who had serv'd his Father, and pack off all the Princes of the Blood, and ancient Nobility, and to create a new Set of Nobles and Courtiers for his purpose.

The People took the Alarm, and clamour'd for a Purliament to regulate Disorders, and Evils that threatned and hung over them. A Parliament, a Parliament, was the Cry and Expectation throughout all the Kingdom.

The Bishop of Paris and Clergy, the Courts of Justice, and the City, (the Three Bodies of the greatest consideration and gravity) presented to him their several Remonstrances.

He (Dissembling being his Talent) took all kindly; and to break their Discontents, or divert them, he took six Persons out of each of their Companies, to be of his ordinary Council; in show only, for in effect he was still the same.

And amongst the profligate Rabble about the Court, there wanted not in the mean time a sort of Wretches who made an Hubbub, and as formally declared their Detestation and Abhorrence of their Practices that had importun'd the King with their Remonstrances, and call'd it an unparalell'd Violation of their Duty. Nay, (Philip de Comines tells us,) the Courtiers went so far, they call'd it Rebellion to Mention a Parliament. Nor was it strange such Cattle then should be shelter'd about the Court, when a Mountebank was set up for Lord Chancellor, Taylor and Barbers (Johan de Doyac, Olivier le diable dit le Dain, &c.) the prime Ministers of State.
went

This jarring agd misunderstanding was followed by a Civil War, which was call'd The Publick Good. This produc'd a Parliamen. And this Parliament would no longer trust Lewis single with the Administration of Affairs; but appointed him Thirty six Commissioners, (Curateurs) to be his Assistants. However, Lewis's Excellency lay in playing an After-game.

In the War, he had sent to his Ally Alexander Sforza for Aid; who return'd him Answer, that Men he had none to spare, but would give Advice, which should be as effectual; so the Italian advis'd him Always to agree with his Enemies upon any Conditions, and then find an opportunity to cut their Throats. According to this, Bodin speaks of him, Pacem inire coactus est, sed eos omnes clam aut aperte, paucis admodum exceptis, necandos curavit, fratrem quoque Carolum veneno.

This is the Dexterity which Comines so much labours to Gloss over, and set a Countenance upon; these the Belles Actions, and the Finesse, which the Modern French so much Celebrate celebrate at this day; all is copyed from this Original.

43 The Antiquity, Power and

Perjuries and Poisons were his ordinary Arms, yet none so Devout, none so Superstitious, none made the like Largesses to the Church. But his Masses and Pilgrimages did always portend some strange horrid Murder about to be executed.

These were but personal Vices; his cajoling the Citizens, and affected Gallantry to their Wives, was politick enough. But what proved effectual to his Design of Changing the Government, and Excluding Parliaments, was his laying aside the Franc-Archers; who hitherto had been the Train'd-bands, and ordinary Militia of the Country.

In the War (call'd The Publick Good) he found that those Franc-Archers (being Men of a settled Habitation, and way of Living) took part with their Landlords and Neighbours against him; therefore from thenceforth he slighted them, and, by Beat of Drum from Town to Town, gathered and list'd such as Voluntarily offer'd themselves to his Service.

These were then called Adventurers, because they sought their Adventure by Fortune of War; as afterwards, when Charles the Eighth carried them over the Alps, they got the Name of Souldiers, from the Sold, or Pay, they received upon that Expedition.

But

But as this Lewis could not trust the Militia, so in a little time he began to think himself not safe amongst his Adventurers. These yet were not remote enough from the Interest of their Country, and had some small Sense of its Oppression.

Thereupon, for the more immediate Guards of his Person, he takes into Pension Four thousand Switzers. And by that Establishment, seems to have compleated his Design, and alter'd the old Parliamentary, into a Military Government.

And now it was not so hard a matter to borrow Money of the Citizens, and otherwise make those Levies which no King before him ever attempted.

Thus it was that he brought the Royalty hors du page; or, rather (according to the Paraphrase of their Historian Mezeray) hors du sens & du raisonne.

Though in Germany the Condition of their Parliaments is not altogether so deplorable and desperate; yet of latter times there have not wanted lusty Endeavours by Force and by Artifice to destroy them.

Right and Wrong are ever the same, but Times and Manners vary Faces very much. One while, instead of all other Penalty for a Crime,

36 The Antiquity, Power and Crime, it was sufficient that the Law censur'd it with an improbè factum. To say he that does so, or so, is to blame, was more effectual and coercive in those Saturnian days, than are Racks and Gibbets with us.

Radamanthus his way of administering Justice in all Causes between Party and Party, was by putting them both to their Oaths, and determining their Right accordingly.

This, says Plato, was a proper and ready way in that Age, when every Body was possessed with the Fear of God. But, says he, this would not do, now in our times, when some make it a question whether there be a God or no; others make a doubt whether God regards what we do on Earth; most and the worst of Men have a conceit, that though there be a God, that they can pacifie him with their vile Adulations, their Mummeries and their Masses; so that they may be still as Wicked as they please.

Therefore, says he, when Mens Opinions are chang'd, the Laws also must be chang'd; for, otherwise, if our Judges now were to make Radamanthus their Precedent, we should all be over head and ears in Perjuries.

The like may be observ'd in relation to Sovereigns. In old time at first there was only a simple Confidence betwixt them and their People. And never were Kings so reserv'd, as then when they had no Bounds.

After-

Afterwards, the Misbehaviour of some Princes introduced that Check of a Coronation Oath. And where that is the only Check, 'tis an argument they had never yet been tainted with the Atheism and Infidelity, which Plato mentions; but had continually liv'd and rul'd with that Simplicity and Religious Fear, so memorable in those days when Minos and Radamanthus were King and Chief-Justice of Crete.

Claude Seiffelle reckons several Refrains, Bridles, that curb the French Kings. But now when the Old Parliament is obsolete, this would be remarkt upon, as a graceless unmannerly Metaphor, in the refined Language.

In the State of Venice, at first their Prince was as absolute as any Barbarian; till having strayed, and given some Instances of Humane Frailty, new Curbs and new Tyes were devised for him. But the Italian prov'd still too Witty to be held by any.

The Venetians however would not be dally'd withal; they would not suffer their Transgressor to rejoyce long in his Extravagance, but pursued him with exemplary Punishment: Sabellicus reckons to the number of Twelve that lost their Heads for slipping their Bridles.

At the length, when the Venetians found that neither the simple Trust was sacred, nor the Coronation-Oath inviolable, nor the exemplary Punishment effectual to contain their Prince within the bounds that were consistent with a Free-People; they concluded that the Publick Safety could not be sufficiently provided for, and secured against their Prince, till they stript him of all the Reality and Substance, leaving him barely the Formalities and Trappings, and empty Shadow of Sovereignty.

Now to come to the Germans; whatever Shifts other People have been put to, to maintain their Liberty, they (it should seem) never trusted the Sovereignty out of their own Hands. So that whether it be a mixt, or what other sort of Government you call it; the great Affairs were always reserv'd to be determin'd in Parliament; there was the Supreme Power, there was the Majesty.

Yet no People have been forwarder in adorning their Prince with all the Titles and Exprellions of Greatness, and arbitrary uncontrollable Power; than they.

All the Acts and Laws run in his Name; and are called Cesar's Laws, and Cesar's Constitutions.

Where the Emperor and the Empire are Named, he constantly has the Precedence.

In

In the publick Ordinances and Recesses, every thing from him are stiled Precepts and Commands; from the States merely Obedience and Prayers, though he cannot wag a Finger without their Consent.

They every where speak of, and own in him a Fulness of Power, vollkommenheit. And this they give also to the King of the Romans at the same time; to show the Emptiness and Vanity of it. As both are call'd Heads of the Empire, though the latter has no Power at all, during the Emperor's Life.

They and the World salute him by the Title of Imperial Majesty. And the German Style will not allow Majesty to any other Kings; die Koninglicher Wurde, not die Koninglicher Macht, the King's Worship, not Majesty.

Yet after all, Aeneas Sylvius says, in Germ. c. 43. Imperatorem, & Regem, & Dominum vestrum esse fateamini, precario tamen ille imperare videtur, nulla ejus potestas est.

The Shadow and Flourish only were in the Emperor; but the Jura Majestatis, the Vis Imperii, the Essentials of Majesty were always reserv'd and exercis'd by the Common Assembly, as by the Particulars may more plainly appear.

40 The Antiquity, Power and

1. One of the Rights of Sovereignty is to be above the Law, and to give Laws to the People.

Neither of these Royalties belong to the Emperor; he may be call'd to account for violating the Laws. In the Golden Bull, the Forms and Proceedings against him are stated. 'Tis there said to be the Custom, and accordingly settled and agreed for Law, that the Electors may Impeach the Emperor, in the Assembly of the States; and the Count Palatine of the Rhine, a Chief Elector, is to be the President or Judge.

For the Legislation, or making Laws, the Emperor proposes, the States are free which Propositions they will proceed upon. When an Act is to be passed, the Electors have six Votes, the Princes six, the Cities two, the Emperor has but one (the last) Vote. Without a Majority he can do nothing: They can Decree without him if he is absent. The Ordinances are to be confirm'd by his Seal and Subscription; but if the States persist, he must of necessity comply. Even Charles the Fifth in vain contested that point, as may be seen in Sleidan l. 4.

These Sanctions are regularly subscribed by Cæsar, and by some of the States for the Empire; and are Enrolled (at Mentz) in the Chancery of the Empire. The several Members of the States are sworn to be true to the Emperor

Decay of Parliaments. 41

Emperor and to the Empire; and are said to be Subjects of the Emperor, and of the Sacred Empire.

2. In matters of Religion, in all times, the Head of the State had the Supreme direction, as it was said of Tiberius, Deum munere summum Pontificem summum hominem esse. And the Christian Princes, before the Papal Tyranny usurpt upon them, were always the Chief Pontiffs, and receiv'd the Pontifical Habit from that College.

But upon the Reformation in Germany Anno 1555. both the Empror and Pope were excluded, and their Pontifical Supremacy abrogated. In the point of Religion, the Emperor was not consider'd as the Chief and Head of the Empire, but as a Party: for by joyning himself to the Roman Catholics, he makes their Cause and Concern his own. It was therefore agreed and concluded, that the States only should determine in matters of Religion; and that with a tender hand, in an amicable way only.

3. War and Peace are transacted in the Name of the Emperor; but in effect, as is reserv'd to the States. He must at the least have the Consent of the Electors.

Yet any Prince of the Empire may levy Souldiers, may make Leagues and Associations without any Bodies Leave.

4. For

42 The Antiquity, Power and

4. For Jurisdiction, and the last Appeal, the Civilians say the Emperor is fons omnis Jurisdictionis ; but here it is far otherwise.

The Princes in Causés touching their Life, their Honour, or their Fee, always claim'd their Privilege das fursten-recht (they call it) to be try'd by their Peers the Princes of the Empire.

The Common Pleas were tryed by the Emperor, and attended his motion, till by the Increase of the Suits, that Judicature was no longer sufficient, the Judges grew corrupt, and many other Inconveniencies appearing, the States, in their Assembly at Frankford, An. 1489. ordered a place certain for the Decision of those ordinary Causés ; whereupon the Imperial Chamber at Spires was erected.

All the Procefs and Deerees of the Court ran in the Emperor's Name, and are under his Seal ; and it is call'd Cesar's Court. But it is also call'd the Court of the Empire.

The Emperor only Named the President ; by the States were the rest of the Judges appointed ; the other Officers of the Court by the Elector of Mentz, Arch-Chancellor of the Empire.

The States likewise execute the Sentence. They Visit and Reform the Court by their Com-

Commissioners; and to these Visitors are the Appeals, not to the Emperor.

Yet some voluntary References that were made to the Emperor and his Privy-Council, and to their Arbitration, gave them opportunity of late to usurp a Jurisdiction.

5. Taxes are all Levy'd in the Emperor's Name; but in truth nothing of that Nature can be done without the Assembly of the States. Nor is the Emperor trusted with the Money in his Exchequer; the States keep it till it be employ'd; they have their several Treasuries.

Sometimes the several Circles keep their respective Money; sometimes a Publick Treasury is agreed upon, and one or more Pfenning Meisters (Penny-Masters) appointed. Anno 1495. They ordered seven Treasurers, one to be named by the Emperor, and six by the States. And if any be by special Oath or Obligation bound to the Emperor or other particular State, he is incapable of that Trust. These are accountable to the States only.

If the Occasion for which the Tax was rais'd be taken away, the Money cannot be diverted to other Uses, but by the Consent of the States.

6. The Chief Magistrates are, none of them, made by the Emperor. The Count Elector Palatine is Vicar or Protector of the Empire, and ha

44 The Antiquity, Power and has the Charge of it in the Emperor's Absence. The Three Ecclesiastical Electors, who are chosen by the Chapters, are of course the Arch-Chancellors of the Empire. The States appoint the (Reichs-Skak-Meister, or Reichs-Pfenning-Meister) the Treasurer of the Empire. Sometimes they leave the General to be nam'd by the Emperor, and the Ten Circles appoint their several Directors or Council for him.

For the other Particulars, as the Inspection and Care of Coyning Money, the Hearing and Sending Ambassadors, &c. the Emperor has no great matter of advantage above the other States.

On a Common Account, where the Concern is general, the States must be Consulted; and nothing can be done without their Consent and Approbation.

The Electors are in Possession, and Exercise a particular Sovereignty in some Points of greatest Moment. They are the Trustees and Representatives of the whole Empire, in their Election of the Emperor. And hereupon they undertake likewise to loosen his Power, or tye it up short; and make what Capitulations they please with him. And thereby would assume to themselves more than the other States will be ever content to allow them.

But the Emperor singly, besides the Name, and Poms, and empty Titles, has very little of the Substantial Sovereignty entrusted with him. The

The Investiture of the great Fiefs belongs to him. This is a Prerogative goodly in show, and were of moment, could he lay any Conditions or Charge on the Person invested; but nothing is left to his Will; he cannot deny the lawful Heir. Nor does the Fee, for want of Heirs, Escheat to the Emperor, but to the Publick Patrimony.

He grants Privileges, where a third Person or the Publick is not injur'd.

He founds Universities, grants Fairs, makes Denizens, &c.

He Creates Kings, Princes, Dukes, Marquisses, Counts, Poet-Laureats, Doctors, &c.

He gives only the bare Titulary Honour of Prince, but not the Qualifications: he cannot make him capable to Sit and Vote amongst the other Princes of the Empire.

So that here the States are not subject to that Imposition which the Roman Senate once suffer'd under Tarquinius Priscus, who created an hundred new Senators, to the end he might be sure of a Court-party, by his Creatures, and have a Majority of Votes in the House.

In short, the Germans seem to have observ'd the Rule in Politicks, That he who is the most G high

46 The Antiquity, Power and high in Name and Dignity, should in real Power be the least considerable.

Yet in the last Age, the States gave way to several Innovations, which prov'd of mischievous consequence afterwards.

It had accidentally been the Custom for the Assembly of the States, to send for the Emperor to come to them upon occasion; so Hincmar tells us of Charles the Great, Rogatu ipsorum in Concilium veniebat, quotiescunque voluntas esset ut ad eos veniret; similiter quoque quanto spacio voluissent, cum iis confisteret, &c. Ep. 3. c. 35.
Upon their Messages to him, he came to the Assembly, as often as they had a mind he should come to them; and in like manner he stayed so long with them as they desired. And this Custom continued, as may be seen in Lehem. l. 7. c. 80.
and c. 113. till under Maximilian. And then the States began to go to the Emperor.

This Maximilian likewise, upon pretence of sudden occasions that admitted not delays, would now and then be acting single, and u-surping in several particulars the Power that of right could only be exercised by the States.

Therefore the States, An. 1500. to take off these pretences, and prevent all Attempts of this kind, and partly, peradventure, for their own Ease, substituted in their absence a Committee, which they call'd the Reigment, and
the

the Members Regents. This Regiment was an Epitome of the whole Empire, and was endued with all the Powers and Sovereignty accordingly.

It consisted of Twenty Persons, who were chosen out of several Orders of the States; and took an Oath to be true to the Emperor, and to the Empire.

The Emperor, or his Proxy, was their President, but lest this might give too great advantage to the Emperor, an *Elect*or was added, as Joynt-President with the Emperor, or his Proxy.

No Person of dependence on, or particular Obligation to the Emperor, was capable of being a Member.

The Emperor had no more Vote than any one of the Twenty Regents; nor could determine ought, unless the Majority were for him.

These were not simply to consult, but had the Execution also.

This Constitution held for some years. And then the Annual Assembly returned, and resumed their Power, and acted again. But in case of sudden necessity left another expedient for the Emperor. They Constituted for him a Council, consisting of Eight Persons,

48 The Antiquity, Power and

Four chosen by the Electors, and Four by the other States. These were sworn to be true to the Emperor and to the Empire, Seweren der Keyserlichen Majestat und dem heiligen reichs getreu, &c.

But Charles the Fifth coming to Reign, he was upon the new Model immediately. He restor'd the Regiment, but the Conditions altogether different.

Now it consisted not of Twenty, but Twenty two Persons. He, as Emperor, would have Two Votes added, thereby in effect to be Master of Five Votes; Two as Emperor, One as President, One for Austria, and One for Burgundy.

The former Regiment might, according to the Old Custom, send for the Emperor to come to them. Now it was order'd that Cesar might call them to what place he had a mind.

Formerly if the Emperor came not, they might proceed without him; now, Charles the Fifth forbid them to make Leagues and Alliances, or do ought in his absence. The Oath was alter'd, and the Members were only Sworn to the Emperor, and said to be the Council of the Emperor; whereas the former was called the Council of the Empire.

In

In the former Constitution, the Electors, in the name of the Empire, subscribed their Ordinances; here, with the Electors's Subscription is joyned that of the President, in the name of the Emperor.

In short, the former was Constituted by the States, and entrusted with their Power, to be a Check upon the Emperor; this was formed by Cesar, to quiet the People, and entertain them with a Show, whilst he the more insensibly made his Advances to invade their ancient Rights, and usurp all the Power into his own hands.

The next project in case of Emergencies, was the Assembly of the Deputies. This consisted of the Six Electors, Six other Princes, and Two Cities; to which were after added Four Princes more. This continued till An. 1606. with some effect. Afterwards it prov'd of little consequence, Court-artifice prevailing, and the Ferdinands found a way to manage the Deputies, and render them as unprofitable to the Publick, as Charles the Fifth had made the Regiment.

The second Ferdinand called what Deputies he knew would Vote for him, the rest he excluded, and supply'd their place with others, who he understood were entirely at his devotion, as he told my Lord Digby, Ambassadour with him, Ann. 1621. Lundorp. Tom. 2.

Amongst

o The Antiquity, Power and Amongst these Projects, may be mentioned the Council of the Emperor's Court, and the Privy Council. These also, that they might show as if the Empire had the Interest in them, were at the first sworn to the Elector of Mentz, as Arch-Chancellor of the Empire. Which Oath came after some time to be omitted.

Thus we have seen that the Custom of the Empire was to have a yearly Assembly; these at the end of their Session always appointed the Time and Place for their next Meeting. If necessity for them sooner, then was the Emperor to call an Assembly extraordinary; which happening frequently, the States for their ease appointed the Regiment, and other Expedients.

This gave a President for the Emperors to devise something of the like Nature, which they might more easily pervert to their own Arbitrary Interest and Advantage. If it have but the Name or Resemblance, the People look no farther; they see not into the Trick and Secrets of it; they are led by the Appearance so long, till they are past recovery, and no way is left them for a Retreat.

And indeed the Emperors of the last Age ceased to deal bonâ fide; the old German Honesty wore out of Fashion, and they no longer treated on the square with their People.

Artifice

Decay of Parliaments. 51

Artifice and Juggle came in place in the days of Charles the Fifth, began to get a specious Appellation, and be nam'd (forsooth) Reason of State.

But more especially, since the Jesuits there have refined upon the Court-Sophistry, and minc'd away all the old Remains of Morality and Conscience; for the Jesuits could the worst of all other, endure these same mixt Governments.

They would have the Pyramid inverted, and the whole stress of things rest upon one single Leg, that their Art might play the more freely, and they the more cleverly trip it down. This broad-bottom'd Monarchy, and Government founded on the People, puts them to other Measures; a Dose of Poison, or consecrated Dagger, will not do the work. They must here go about and about, make slow Approaches, ripen a Plot of many years, and draw a long Concatenation of Intrigue, e'er they can think to compass their Design.

When the Commonwealth has but one Neck, the Jesuit will have it under his Girdle; if not, one Blow does the feat, and his Dexterity is admirable.

Therefore in Germany the Jesuits have left no Stone unturned, for their Part, to bring the Sovereign Power from the States to the Emperor

52 The Antiquity, Power and

Emperor. And to that end of late times the Emperor (whether by their Influence upon his Councils or no, is not our enquiry) has employed all the undue Practices, and set all Engines a-work, to render the Publick Assembly useleſs, burthenſome and odious to the People.

On this Foot, Care has been taken that ſome Vexatious Tax ſhould be the only Reſult and Conclusion of every Seſſion; Aid againſt the Turk, was a conſtant perpetual Pretence; Money the Head of all his Propoſals, Money the Effect and Subſtance of all his Speeches. This Affair once adjusted, other Debates were out of doors, Grievances not then longer to be touch'd upon, but all adjourn'd to another Seſſion. Beſides the miſchievous Devices to embroil the States amongſt themſelves, and turn all their heat upon fruitleſs Diſputes and Altercations.

In the ſecond Place, the Electoral College have not been too fair in their Reſpects to the Diet. Theſe could be content that betwixt Caſar and themſelves all the Matters of the States might be tranſacted. And ſometimes accordingly ſtretch'd a Text of the Golden Bull to ſerve a turn; and colloqued with him, that he again might be Complaiſant to them; till that amongſt them the Publick Patrimony, and Common Right, and Prerogatives of the Empire became engroſt in a few Hands, and were made a Spoil to their unreaſonable Ambition.

Theſe

These Electors must every one, under his Hand and Seal, signify their Consent to the Emperor, before he can summon an Assembly of the States.

They got to themselves the making of the Emperor. And now in effect the States cannot Meet without their Order.

They were wont to be reckoned Six Electors, to some purposes Seven, afterwards Eight, now they make Nine; but before they fill up the Number of the Roman Decemviri, they will do well to remember their Fate. These Ten (as Livy tells us) having got all the Supreme Authority for a Time into their hands, that they might reign absolute, took an Oath together never to call the Common Council. Yet their Tyranny held not long. This Cheat would not down with the Old Romans; but, with a general Indignation, they brake over the Forms and Captivity of the Letter, for that old Law in Homer, to free their Countrey from Slavery, they executed an unwarranted piece of Justice upon these Ten Usurpers, or Ten Tarquins, as Somebody then call'd them.

Εἰς οἶον δ' αἰεὶ ἀμύθητος ὦν ἔσται.

Lastly, The States have not a little been wanting to themselves, in the Affair of this H their

54 The Antiquity, Power and their so Ancient and Fundamental Prerogative. One Principal Cause (amongst many others) has been their Differences about Religion.

For the Protestants being sure to be outvoted in the Diet, think they can barter with Cesar for better Conditions. And are therefore well enough content that the Yearly Assembly be neglected.

In a word, the German Diet is still on the same foot, rather incumber'd, and clogg'd, and puzzled, than destroy'd.

The Parliament of France seems quite antiquated and subdu'd; the Ghost and Shadow of the Defunct has appeared three or four times since Lewis the Eleventh. But to revive that Assembly in its full and perfect Vigour, requires a Miracle like the Resurrection.

So that in effect, we may date the Demise of Parliamentary Sovereignty in France, from Lewis the Eleventh; and the Decay of that in Germany from Charles the Fifth.

It is in England onely, that the Ancient, Generous, and Manly Government survives, and continues in its Original Lustre and Perfection.

Were there not something in that Saying of the Emperor Maximilian, that the French King

King is a King of Asses ; yet however the same Legereté, on which the French so value themselves, is but, in plain English, a Lightness of Humour, by which they are easily piped into any New Mode of Government.

But our English Ancestors have always been of a more Steady Principle, more wise, and more weigh'd, than to dance after their Politicks.

The Reformation of Religion leaves no room at our Court, for Jesuitical Infection, so fatal to the Germans.

Nor, on the other hand, have we yet any Swiss Guards, or Lewisses for our Kings. Ours have still been true English Original, no Copies from the French.

Magna Charta, instead of being superannuated, renews and recovers its Pristine Strength and Athletick Vigor, by the Petition of Right, with our many other Explanatory or Declaratory Statutes. And the Annual Parliament is as well known to our Laws, as ever it had been famous amongst the Customs of France and Germany.

I have not formally answered many Objections that might be started ; nor much regarded the single Instances of some Historians ; and perhaps may be judged Lame in several Particulars that I have slighted.

56 The Antiquity, Power and

Take all together, you may as easily find an Answer as raise a Scruple. But the short of what I would have said, is,

You are not to expect Truth from an Historiographer-Royal: it may drop from their Pen by chance; but the general Herd understand not their Business; they fill us with Story accidental, incoherent, without End, or Side, and never know the Government or Policy where they write.

Even the Records themselves are not always accurately worded.

The Stile of the Court, and a Form of Words, imposes upon many. Names are taken for Things, and Ceremonies for Essentials.

The Civilians are Vassals to a Foreign Jurisdiction. Cesar, the Sword, the Military, Imperial (or rather Imperatorial) Discipline, is to them for Scepter and Civil Policy. The Germans, An. 1441. were for excluding them from all Offices and Places of Trust. Limnews l. 1. de Jure Publ.

Our Common Lawyers are for comparing and measuring by their Rule, what is antecedent and above their Rules and Comparisons.

Christ's

Christ's Kingdom is not of this World; nor ought the Divines ~~negligent~~ negligent to meddle in this Political Province.

In the general Notion, Monarchy or Kingly Government is the most Easie, and the most Excellent. But Corruption coming into the World, neither the Sons of Jupiter, nor the Sons of Hercules found Perfection entailed upon them; nor were exempt from their share of Human Frailty. Many (says Tasso) are Servants by fortune, who are naturally Princes: some again, tho descended from an hundred Kings, are yet born to be Slaves; and (maugre all their high Race of Royal Progenitors) will be commanded, and governed, and managed by a Minion, or a Mistress. These are, really and indeed, Slaves; but are not judged such, because the People, who only look on the Outside, judge of Mens Conditions, as in Plays, where he is call'd a King, who, clad in Purple, and glittering with Gold and Gems, does personate Agamemnon: if he does not represent him well, he has the Name of King nevertheless; only 'tis said, the King was out in his Part, or, the King acted his Part scurvily.

And Flavius Vopiscus, in Aurel. Cæs. tells us, Aurelius Cæsar dicebat, Colligunt se quatuor aut quinque, atque unum Concilium ad decipiendum Imperatorem capiunt; dicunt quod probandum sit; Imperator, qui domi clausus est, vera non novit, cogitur hoc tantum scire, quod illi illi loquuntur ; facit judices quos fieri non oportet ; amovet à Republicâ, quos debebat retinere, quid multa ? ut Dioclesianus ipse dicebat, Bonus, cautus, optimus vendidit Imperator.

58 The Antiquity, Power and

Aurelius Cæsar was wont to say, Four or five get together about the Emperor ; all their Consult is, how to cheat him ; what they say, is to be Law ; the Emperor, who is shut up from other Counsel, never knows the true State of things ; but is forced to understand just so much only, as they tell him ; he makes Judges, who the least of all should be so ; turns out of Commission those who ought to be the Quorum, in a word (according to Dioclesian's Saying) the Emperor, so good, so wary, and so too too good, is bought and sold before his Face.

If then it be true, that he who is of Royal Extraction, clad in Purple, and called a King, is not always naturally such ; it was Wisdom, certainly most seasonable, to find the Means that might correct, and (as it were) ensure Nature against the Impotence and Tyranny of the Minion or Mistress which Tasso mentions.

And if the Observation of Aurelius Cæsar be just, that Cabals are so pernicious ; and that four or five Persons, who get the Prince into their hands and possession, shall abuse, and cheat, and betray him to his Face, in spite of all his Goodness, his Caution, and Royal Vertues ; if, I say, these things be true,

true, the Necessity of Parliaments cannot be disputed. Homer reckons it Barbarity in the Degree remotest from all things of God and Goodness, and a Cyclopean Presumption, to rule without Parliaments.

Old Hesiod, in his homely way, gives an Ænigmatical Reproof to those Kings that would be grasping all, and become so absolute,

Δήπιοι ἔδ' ἴσασιν ὅσῳ πλεόν ἥμισυ πάντῳ, οὐδ' ὅλον ἐν μαλάχῃ τε καὶ ἀσφοδίλῳ μεγ' ὄναρ.

as if he had said, These Fools know not how much more Half is than the Whole; and that a Shoulder of Mutton, with the Love of the People, is more worth than the Ragousts, and the Hautgousts, and all the French Kickshaws whatsoever.

Plato tells us, that even in Asia, they who performed any great Achievements, or enlarged the Empire, were those (as the grand Cyrus, for example) who slackened the Prerogative, and admitted the People to a share in the Government.

But such as Cambyses, who against all Sense and Reason stretcht and strutted upon the τὸ δεσποικόν, the Lordly Domination, brought all again into Confusion and Ruine.

Amongst

60 The Antiquity, Power and

Amongst the Latines, even the Founder of the Roman Name, Romulus, because he took upon himself an Arbitrary Power, to Rule without the Senate, they (it is thought) tore him to Pieces, insomuch that they left nothing of his Body for a Spectacle to the Rabble; as afterwards their Successors unluckily did, who kill'd Cesar.

The Imperial Power that began with the Cæsars, was only Magnum Latrocinium, one huge horrid Oppression. Military Government, Martial Law, Barbarous Nations, Goths and Vandals, over-ran and mad havock of the old Civil Roman Empire.

In Britain, Gaul and Germany, all this while Liberty and a Participation in the Government, was the Common Right and Inheritance unalienable; the Common Council was the Basis and Hinge, however the Administration roll'd.

Afterwards, when Germany gave us People, it gave us a German and Free People.

About An. Dom. 800. Charlemain (or Charles the Great) united France and Germany under one Head, and one Empire; all Histories are full of his Reign and Actions: he rul'd more solenni, secundum morem, in the Old Customary Parliamentary way every where.

The Nations round about submitted and took Laws from him; and he submitted all again to the (ordinatum) Ordinance of Parliament. An Annual Parliament was then reckon'd the Custom, and inviolable Right of the People.

And thus the Affairs of State proceeded, and this Scheme of Government continued in Germany, till the late unhappy Divisions about Religion, weakening and embroyling the States, gave way to the Austrian Ambition, new Projects, and Jesuitical Artifice; so that the Assembly of the States, at this day, keeps on foot (indeed) but is sick, heavy, and unweildy.

The French Court had much sooner learnt the Terms de proprio Motu, & potestate absolutâ, by their Neighbourhood and Correspondence with the Pope at Avignon. But so long as the English Arms kept them in mind of their Mortality, it was no time for them to think of ruling without a Parliament.

But when Charles the Seventh had sent home the English, Lewis the Eleventh, with (Olivier le diable) his Barbers and his Cut-throat Devils, thought no Attempt too wicked for them. He (forsooth) was hors du page; he wanted not to be led, he was past an Infant; and a loud Out-cry he made against the unmannerly, clump-fisted, bumpkin Parliament. But when the Bien Publique or War for the Publick Good, hindred him from bringing about his Design openly and directly, he compass'd it, in effect, by slighting the Militia, and laying his Project of a Standing Army.

62 The Antiquity, Power and

In England we have also heard of Minions, and Mistresses, and Cabals; and have had unhappy Princes. But the Laws and Old Customs of the Land, the Generosity of the People, and the Genius of the Nation, have still prevailed, and been too strong for all their Practices and Machinations.

When the Normans came to the Crown, after some Years of Ease and Prosperity, they began to forget on what Conditions they had entred. Conquest was a short, a compendious Title, and without Intricacy. And now likewise the Church-men were every where agog for changing the Government, both of Church and State, into an Absolute Monarchy. But the best on't was, the Pretences were visible and notorious. Besides that the Temporal and Spiritual, the Prince and the Prelatical Lord could not agree who should be Supreme. Which Differences gave breath to the People, and put into their hands an Opportunity to assert their ancient just Rights, and bottom all upon the Parliament again.

And now, since the Great Charter, and Petition of Right, and the many other Declarations, what can hurt us?

Neither

Neither the Gunpowder-Treason, nor the late more sacred Invention of a Pensioned Parliament could take effect.

No room is left amongst us for a Standing Army, which enslaved the French. And (our Franc-Archers) our Militia continues after the Old Model.

Nor with us, as in Germany, is the Papist like to bear up against, and balance our Protestant Votes in Parliament; thereby to render the Constitution uselefs and unpracticable.

And it may be hoped, we shall never so far give way, and be gull'd by Jesuitical Artifice, as to find another Division in Religion amongst us, that may favour their Designs, and, under other Names, do their Work as completely.

You need not be caution'd to distinguish Plato the Divine, from Plato the Philosopher. Poets and Divines, you know, have a particular way of Expression, and give their Thoughts a Turn different from that of other People. They attribute every thing to God, tho the whole Operation and Train of Causes and Proceedings be never so natural and plain before their Face; the Images they make are often taken in the grossest Sense, and worshipped by the Vulgar, and many times the Statesman is willing to contribute to their Idolatry. Hence it comes, that for the Persians, Zoroaster was said to receive his Laws from Horomasis; Trismegistus, for the Egyptians, from Mercury; Minos, for the Cretans, from Jupiter; Charondas, for the Carthaginians, from Saturn; Lycurgus, for the Lacedemonians, from Apollo; Draco and Solon, for the Athenians, from Minerva; Numa Pompilius, for the Romans, from Egeria; Xamolxis, for the Scythians, from Vesta; and all these as truly, as Mahomet had his Alcoran from the Angel Gabriel.

64 The Antiquity, Power and

This sort of Doctrine went current enough whilst Monkery and Ignorance sat in the Chair;
but now, in an Age of History and Human Reason, those blind Traditions go hardly down with us. So that Jure Divino at this day makes but a very litigious Title.

Nor was it consistent with the Brevity of a Letter, to observe minutely how long the Remains of the Roman Domination continued amongst us; as, namely, That the Roman was the onely Authentick Language, for Judicial Matters, in Germany, till the Reign of Rudolph the first, about the Year 1287. in England till Edward the Third, in France till Francis the First.

But in Church-Affairs, the old Mark of Slavery is not yet worn off; the Spiritual Em- peror will remit nothing, he still holds his Vas- sals to the Roman Tongue, even in Divine Ser- vice;

vice; onely in England, and where Reformation has prevailed, this, with the other Appurtenances of Roman Bondage, are no longer necessary.

Nor is it proper, in this general Draught, to reflect on all the several Steps, and little Dispositions to Change, in each Nation. As how sometimes a Practice has prevailed against the Form and Letter; sometimes the Form of Words has been necessary, but the Practice obsolete. The Use in Commissions of the Phrase, pour enjouyr tant qu'il nous plaira, was not known in France till Lewis the Eleventh try'd its Virtue; which occasioned their Parliament, Anno 1467. to ordain that, notwithstanding the Clause tant qu'il nous plaira, Offices should not be void, save only by Death, Resignation, or Forfeiture; as Pasquier in his Recherches informs us.

But peradventure, since it has been so much controverted of late amongst us, Who are the Three Estates? and the Word occurring so frequently in the German Tongue, you may expect some Account who they be, that have the Name of States in Germany.

They express the word States in their own Language, and call them Stands and Reichsstands, because, says Goldastus, the Empire stands and rests upon them, as upon its Basis and Pillars. Status Imperii dicantur, quod in illis, seu membris, id est, basibus & columnis, ipsum Imperium stet & subsistat. Those

Those are said to be Stands, who have the Right to Sit and Vote in the Common Assembly of the Empire. Hi quidem status, Reichsstands appellantur, ideo, quod statum & locum votandi & sedendi in Comitias Imperii habent; hæc quippe unicâ & propriâ quasi notâ, status ab aliis Imperii subjectis secernuntur, Arumæus, c. 4. de Comitiiis. So that all the question is, how many several Ranks, or distinct Orders, there may be of these Stands.

From Polybius we have had a particular account of mixt Governments, where he calls those that represent the Monarchical, the Aristocratical, and the Popular State, Τεῖα μὲν τὰ κοινὰ τῆς πολιτείας, The Three governing parts of the Commonwealth. So the King, the Senate, and the Ephori at Sparta; the Consuls and Senate, and the Tribunes at Rome, were the Three States, and had each their particular Shares in the Government.

The like seems to have obtained in France, under the Names of the King, the Peers, and the Third State. Nor did the Power of the Clergy, how great soever otherwise, make any new distinct Order, but were mixt and included with the other States; as their Learned Archbishop Claude Scisselle, in his Treatise of the French Monarchy, shows us.

In Germany how the Government has been Shared, and who have had a Right of Voting in in old Times, we may learn from what has before been Cited out of Tacitus; the Rex, the Principes, and the Omnes, denote the Three States, who had their several Shares, and Right of Voting in the Government.

The same Distinction continued still under the Western Empire. Hincmar, at the yearly Assembly, or generale placitum under Charlemain, does comprehend all under the Terms of Seniores and Minores. So that the Emperor, the Seniors, and the Commons, seem to have been the Three States.

Senior (which the Germans exprest in their Ealdermen) we may suppose, was a word grew currant in the Provincial, or vulgar Roman about that time; and afterwards was diversified into Sieur, and Sire, and Sir, and Monsignior, and Monsieur, and was ordinarily applyed to Men in great Office. Cum Seniori urbis nunciata fuissent, &c. Seniores loci illius, &c. Nil per me feci, nisi quæ mihi, à Dominis nostris & Senioribus Imperata sunt, &c. Tempore Senioris nostri, &c. ex parte Senioris mei Caroli, &c. These and the like Passages, in Gregory Turonensis, way shew the Extent of the Word, and that the Seniores in Hincmar, were the same with Principes in Tacitus. Nor did the Signories become Hereditary till Otho the first his Reign.

But

But what most affected the Government, and prov'd of greatest Consequence in this Affair, was, the Innovation that happened in Frederic the Third his time: for whereas formerly a Proclamation was wont to be issued out, for summoning the Assembly, whereupon, Delecti ex singulis Civitatibus, says Aymoinus from every Town and City were chosen the Burgesses and Citizens to go their Representatives to the Assembly. Now so many, griev'd at the Charge, neglected the Proclamations, that oftentimes the Assembly could not proceed for want of a competent Number of Members. Wherefore Frederic let the Proclamation alone, and instead thereof, sent particular Letters to the several Towns; and henceforward none took themselves obliged to attend, who had not Letters directed to them. Many of the poorer Towns were glad to be excused, and private Gentlemen left off going: so that within a little time the Government was brought into a few Hands, and every day rendred less and less Popular. Those Cities that preserved their Share in the Government, and Right of Voting, by continuing to send their Representatives to the Assembly, are now therefore called Imperial Cities.

Although the Electoral Princes had a Name, much sooner, yet were they still one and the same State with the other Princes, till under this Frederic, in the Diet at Frankford, An. 1489. they parted, and became a Particular Assembly, and

The Antiquity, Power and 69
and Voted severally, and from that time got the Name of a Distinct State, and form'd a new sort of an Aristocracy by themselves.

Yet all this while the Clergy did never set up for a separate Order in the Commonwealth, but always made a mixt State with the Laity: mixt they are in the Electoral State, and mixt in that of the Princes, where the Geistlicher and Weltlicher, Ghostly and Worldly (as they call 'em) together with the Counts, Barons, and other Gentlemen, make but one State. They have indeed a particular Bench (die geistliche Bank) to sit upon by themselves, save that the Arch-Duke of Austria, and Duke of Burgundy, only sit upon it above them.

Now whether we fix our Notion of the Three States upon the Doctrine of the Ancients, as delivered by Polybins; or call them the States, who have Right of Voting; The Emperor is clearly one of the States. Nor is it material that the ordinary Stile and Form of Words seem to imply the contrary: for if the Saying, Emperor and the States, argues the Emperor himself to be none of the States, by the same Reason the Form so frequent in their Recesses or Publick Ordinances, chur fursten, fursten, und Standen, that is, Electo-Princes, Princes, and States, will exclude the Electors, K and

70 The Antiquity, Power and
and the other Princes also, from being either of them States.

The Form Emperor and States, does no more prove him to be none of the States, than with us the saying King and Parliament, does imply, that the King is no part of the Par- liament.

I shall not trouble you with the Disputes, what were the Boundaries of Anstasia and Newstria, or whether by the Devolution of this Western Empire, Germany was added to France, or France to Germany. Or whether more properly Charlemain be to be reckoned amongst the French or the Germans. His having been born at Ingelsheim, as most affirm; or at Carolsburg in the Upper Bavaria, as many believe; and his speaking the German Tongue, with this Testimony of Eginhardus, viz. Men- sibus juxta patriam linguam nomina imposuit;
cum ante id tempus apud Francos partim Latinis, partim Barbaris nominibus appellarentur, Janua-rium appellavit Wintermonat, Februarium Horning, Martium Lenkmonat, &c. These, I say, are urged by the Germans, as no mean Arguments. But these Matters concern not our Enquiry.

If you cannot reconcile the Emperor's being somewhere said to be Sacri Imperii Minister, and elsewhere declared to have no Superiour, nisi Deum & Ensem, but God and the Sword; Bartolus tells you, De verbis non curat Jurisconsultus. The Intention is to be regarded before the Words. The Intention of the States in that Declaration, Anno 1338. was none other than to exclude the wild Pretensions of the Pope; to deny a Foreign Jurisdiction; not to contest or introduce any New Subjection in themselves: Limitata ex certâ causâ confessio non nisi limitatum producat effectum.

But I cannot conclude without some Reflection on these Frauds a-la-mode, the Ruse and Fineness, which the French so loudly boast at this day. Lewis the Eleventh would not have his Son learn more Latine than Qui nescit dissimulare, nescit regnare. The old Romans had another sort of Spirit; we are told in Livy, Hæc Romana esse. Non versutiarum Punicarum, neque calliditatis Grace — apud quos fallere hostem gloriosius — dolo quam virtute: 'tis like a Roman, to deal openly and roundly; not to practise the Carthaginian Leger-de-main Tricks, or Grecian Cunning, whose Glory is to circumvent, and by Fraud not Vertue overcome an Enemy.

The Venetians at this day are commended for the same Style. Il procedere veramente Regio regli affari publici, il negoziare saldo, e libero, e senza artificio, o duplicita; non mascherato, non finto, ma sincero, e del tutto alieno da ogni dissimulatione e fallacia. Their Proceedings in Publick Affairs (says our Author) is truly Royal; they negotiate upon the square, frankly, and without Artifice or Double-dealing, not disguised, or upon the Sham; but sincere, and every way far from all Dissembling and Tricks.

And indeed the Bugie and Inganni, and little Italian Shifts, would better become Duke Valentine and the Petty Princes, than any Kingdom or Commonwealth of True Strength and Solid Reputation.

The σοφισματα and the μεθοδους, the Sophistries and State-Pretences of this kind, however furbish'd up and gloss'd over of late by our Politick Brokers, were all Stale Cheats, and worn out even in Aristotle's time.

Thus have I hinted Matters to you, and only touch'd upon General Heads, without anticipating your own Reflections and Applications.

I have

I have not treated you like Stranger, but as one thorowly Informed before-hand, and as one to whom all those Difficulties are Familiar, which I can only discover at a great Distance.

And after all, I must fly from your Judgment, to your God-Nature.

Yours, &c.

F I N I S.

BOOKS Printed for D. BROWNE,
W. MEARS, and J. BROWNE.

A Rchæologia Britannica; Giving some Account, (additional to what has been hitherto Published.) of the Languages, Histories and Customs, of the Original Inhabitants of Great Britain, from Collections and Observations, in Travels thro' Wales, Cornwall, Bas-Bretagne, Ireland and Scotland, by Ed. Lluyd, M. A. of Jefus College in Oxon, Keeper of the Ashmolean Museum, Fol.

Advice to a Son in the University, in two Parts, by J. Barecroft, D. D. the Third Edit. To which is now added Rules for Preaching; Plainly Intimating what Subject, Method and Style, may be Requisit in that Divine Art.

The Country Survey-Book, or Land Meter's Vade-Mecum, wherein the Principles and Practical Rules for Surveying of Land, are so Plainly, (tho' Briefly Delivered) that any one of Ordinary Parts (Understanding how to Add, Subtract, Multiply and Divide) may, by the Help of this Small Treatise alone, and a few Cheap Instruments, easy to be procur'd, Measure any Parcel of Land, and with Judgment and Expedition, Plott it, and give up the Content thereof, &c. With Copper Plates. By Adam Martindale, The Eighth Edit.

A True and Exact Catalogue of all the Plays that were ever yet Printed in the English Tongue, with the Authors Names against each Play (Alphabetically Digested) and Continued down to October, 1713.

English Proverbs, with Moral Reflections, By O. Dykes, The Third Edit. with large Additions, Pr. 4s.

The Art of Prudence, or a Companion for a Man of Sense. Written Originally in Spanish by that Celebrated Author Balthazar Gratian; now made English from the best Edition of the Original, and Illustrated with the Sieur Amelot de la Hussai's Notes; By Mr. Savage. Pr. 3s.

A Compleat History of Mines and Minerals, with all the Laws Relating thereto.

Arts Improvement, or Choice Experiments and Observations in Building, Husbandry, Gardening, Mechanicks, Chymistry, Painting, Fapaning, Varnishing, Gilding, Inlaying, Embossing, Carving, Preserving several things in their Natural Shape and Colour, &c. Extracted from the most Celebrated Authors, and the Author's own Experience, By T. S. Pr. 3s. 6d.

The Young Accomptant's Debitor and Creditor, or an Introduction to Merchants Accompts, after the Italian Manner, in an Easie and Plain Method altogether New; Adapted to the Concerns of Young Gentlemen who Manage their own Estates; to those in Publick Offices; to Tradelmen, and to all Persons that Desire to be exact in Accompts. By Abr. Nicholas, Pr. 6d.

The New Metamorphosis, or the Pleasant Transformation, being the Golden Age of Lucius Apuleius of Medaura; Exposing the Secret Follies and Vices of Maids, Wives and Widows, Nuns, Fryers, Jesuits, Statesmen, Courtiers, &c. In two Vols. Adorn'd with Cutts, Pr. 8s.

Miscellany Poems on several Occasions; Written by the Rt. Honourable Anne Countess of Winchelsea, Pr. 5s.

The Danger and Folly of Evil Courses; Being a Practical Discourse, Shewing the Base and Vile Nature of Sin, and the Dreadful Consequences of it, as well in this World, as that which is to come. With such Effectual Remedies, as, if rightly apply'd, will prevent it; and bring Men to a true Love of God and Religion. Partly Extracted from the Writings of Abp. Tillotson, Abp. Sharpe, Bp. Taylor, Bp. Stillingfleet, Bp. Patrick, Dr. Scott, Dr. Horneck, Dr. Lucas, Dr. Sherlock, Dr. Stanhope, Mr. Kettlewell, Judge Hale, &c. By Francis Hewerdine, A. M. Fit to be given to Charity Schools.

New Miscellaneous Poems, with Five Love-Letters from a Nun to a Cavalier; done in Verse. In a neat Elziver Letter, the second Edition, price 1s. 6d. in Calt.

A Treatise of the Operations of Surgery, wherein are mechanically explain'd the Cause of the Diseases in which they are needful, grounded on the Structure of the Part, their Signs and Symptoms; Also many new

